Where the data comes from:

The report will search for any case with the probation requirement types defined in the report settings as “reqTypes.” It will then search the assessments for each of these people to determine if the type of risk assessment defined in the report settings as “riskAssessments” exists, and if so determines the date of that assessment. It then calculates the number of days between assessments as defined in the report settings under “daysBetweenAssessments” to determine if a risk assessment is needed.
